

Healthy and happy

Unit 1 · Reading claims and writing careful replies

Valentin · Saturday 3 October 2026
way2go! 8, Unit 1

School work and app check

- 01 What are you working on at school? Any deadline?
- 02 How did you get on with the app? Show one answer.
- 03 What would you like help with today?

Two posts, two big claims

FICTIONAL POST A

“A ten-minute walk guarantees better exam results.”

FICTIONAL POST B

“The same lunch routine helps every teenager focus.”

Which words sound too certain? What would you check?

Five words for today

balanced

nourish

routine

evidence

professional

Explain the words, then use two in your own sentences.

Picture evidence · Exam results

Post A: “A ten-minute walk guarantees better exam results.”

Fictional AI illustration

What activities can you see?

How might the students feel?

Can you see exam results?

School magazine · Part 1

ORIGINAL FICTIONAL STORY

Three students told the school magazine how they manage busy days. Amira brings a balanced lunch to nourish her body. She dislikes studying when she has skipped a meal. Ben sometimes walks with a friend between revision sessions. He says the pause helps him feel ready to return. Lia plans her week so that one evening remains free. She says this makes her schedule feel less crowded. Their experiences are different, and none claims that one routine works for everyone.

Read quietly. Say how the three students manage busy days.

School magazine · Part 2

ORIGINAL FICTIONAL STORY

The magazine also asked Jonas what he does when an online tip sounds convincing. He checks who wrote it and whether the writer offers evidence. For a personal health question, he would ask a trained professional instead of relying only on a post. Later, twelve volunteers answered a school survey: eight liked having more choice in their breaks. The survey shows what those volunteers preferred. It cannot prove that a particular break improves everyone's health or exam results.

Read quietly. What does Jonas check? What did the survey ask?

Reading check · Personal routines

THE FICTIONAL PASSAGE

Three students told the school magazine how they manage busy days. Amira brings a balanced lunch to nourish her body. She dislikes studying when she has skipped a meal. Ben sometimes walks with a friend between revision sessions. He says the pause helps him feel ready to return. Lia plans her week so that one evening remains free. She says this makes her schedule feel less crowded. Their experiences are different, and none claims that one routine works for everyone.

YOUR ANSWERS

- 1 What routines do Amira, Ben and Lia describe?
- 2 Which sentence says their routines may not suit everyone?

Answer aloud and point to supporting words in the passage.

Reading check · A small survey

THE FICTIONAL PASSAGE

The magazine also asked Jonas what he does when an online tip sounds convincing. He checks who wrote it and whether the writer offers evidence. For a personal health question, he would ask a trained professional instead of relying only on a post. Later, twelve volunteers answered a school survey: eight liked having more choice in their breaks. The survey shows what those volunteers preferred. It cannot prove that a particular break improves everyone's health or exam results.

YOUR ANSWERS

- 3 Why does Jonas check the writer of a tip?
- 4 What did eight volunteers prefer?
- 5 Which conclusion goes beyond the evidence?

Point to the text. Preferences do not establish better results.

Make a claim careful

- 01 “A walk guarantees better results.” Make it less certain.
- 02 “You should to check the source.” Correct the sentence.
- 03 “Jonas advises to ask an expert.” Add the missing person.

Say the full corrected sentence before each reveal.

Five-minute break

Pause and look away from the screen

Resume at minute 50

A school choice · Speak

Rory says: “One break routine will help everyone.”

Valentin: question “everyone” and give a reason.

Suggest a short trial with a choice of break activities.

2 min plan · 4 min discuss · 2 min feedback and retry

A model blog comment

A school post says that a ten-minute walk guarantees better exam results. A short break may help some students return to work feeling refreshed, and a walk is easy to try. However, the post gives no evidence about exam marks, so “guarantees” is too strong. Students have different routines, and some may prefer a quiet break. Personal stories can suggest questions to investigate, but they cannot establish that a short walk caused higher marks. I would ask who was studied and how results were compared before sharing this claim with others.

Find: the claim · a possible reason · a doubt · a careful ending

IN CLASS · Your blog comment

Post B: “The same lunch routine helps every teenager focus.”

Write 90–120 words for a school blog.

Give a possible reason and a reason to question the claim.

Finish with a careful view or an evidence question.

2 min plan · 9 min write · 2 min check your cautious language

IN CLASS · Improve it

- 01 Check a strong claim: what evidence supports it?
- 02 Check verbs after might / should: use the base form.
- 03 Rewrite one sentence. Say why your version is better.

Keep your first draft. Make and explain one useful change.

IN CLASS · Exit check

New claim: “One study plan works for every final-year student.”

Say a more careful version of this claim.

Ask one question about the evidence.

Answer independently. Examples appear after both answers.

AFTER CLASS · One small step

- 01 Your blog comment and revision were classwork.
- 02 Rory will confirm ONE follow-up: an unfinished app task OR a short revision.
- 03 Bring your latest school page next time.

RESERVE · Word connections

OPTIONAL RESERVE · CHOOSE IF TIME ALLOWS

Choose four words from the bank below.

Group them: routines, claims or checking sources.

Use two in new sentences about school life.

Word bank: balanced · routine · evidence · professional · survey · volunteers

RESERVE · Final-year priorities

OPTIONAL RESERVE · CHOOSE IF TIME ALLOWS

- 01 Rory's character: "I want to revise every evening."
- 02 Valentin's character: "My job leaves three evenings."
- 03 Compare their needs, suggest a plan, then swap roles.

Fictional roles · 2 min plan · 4 min discuss · 2 min feedback

RESERVE · A careful reply

OPTIONAL RESERVE · CHOOSE IF TIME ALLOWS

Post: “Everyone needs exactly the same healthy routine.”

Name two words that make it too strong.

Write a 60–80-word balanced reply.

2 min plan · 5 min write · 2 min review · Optional classwork

